Mayor's Corner

Citizens of Turtle Creek,
For this month mayor's corner, I want to celebrate and update you all on our outstanding police department. We are so very fortunate to have seven full time and two part time officers protecting and serving Turtle Creek with fidelity and professionalism. From January to July they have responded to 3019 calls! Just recently TCPD, working with state and federal agencies, apprehended multiple people for serious firearm violations and warrant violations, taken 10 illegal firearms off our streets, seized large amounts of drugs, and locked up two violent sexual assault perpetrators. They are making our streets safer every shift day, every day and every night.

As always, please report any suspicious behavior to 911. There are NO "stupid reasons" to call for assistance, or to report a complaint. The police are here to assist when you are in need.

I would like to extend my sincere appreciation to the men and women of the Turtle Creek Police Department for their dedication and commitment to our community. Their hard work and willingness to serve our residents does not go unnoticed. Each day, they work to keep our families, businesses, and neighborhoods safe, and we are truly grateful for their service. As the mayor, I want to thank them for all that they do for the people of Turtle Creek. As always, stay safe and know that your community appreciates and supports you.

Please report any questions, or concerns to my office at 412-823-0154 or mayor@tcboro.com.

Respectfully,
Adam R. Forgie

What's Happening in WHSD?

Welcome Back, Woodland Hills!

Mother Nature tried to make everyone grumpy, but plenty of smiles still shined through as students in the Woodland Hills School District returned to school for the start of the 2026-27 school year on Thursday, August 20. There were hugs, fist bumps, some laughs, and lots of excitement for the start of a brand new school year. From the youngest learners in its three elementary schools to the Woodland Hills Class of 2027, the faculty, staff, and administrators of the Woodland Hills School District are eager to see how the students learn, progress, and continue to develop into outstanding individuals.

Students Cayden Bristow, Emmalee Russini reflect on NOBLE Youth Conference experience

A pair of Woodland Hills High School students recently returned from the 50th Annual National Organization of Black Law Enforcement Executives (NOBLE) training conference in Dallas. NOBLE is devoted to uniting community leaders in a mission to promote justice, equity, and excellence in the administration of justice.

Junior Cayden Bristow and senior Emmalee Russini were able to take part in the conference thanks to their dedication to the Woodland Hills community through the annual Woodland Hills Student Summit. Cayden and Emmalee served as student leaders at the seventh annual Student Summit this past spring and have demonstrated a passion for making a positive impact on their school and their community.

The two Woodland Hills students were like sponges, trying to soak up as much information and advice as they could. It didn't matter if it was something they could use as leaders of the Student Summit, as members of their other clubs and organizations, or in their personal lives. Every idea and interaction was valuable.

Later this year, Bristow and Russini will once again be leaders for the eighth annual Woodland Hills Student Summit. Each of them now has ideas and lessons they hope they can share with their fellow student leaders and with the hundreds of participants.

"I have a tendency to not voice my opinion, not to share my perspective on situations," Russini said. "I want to take that back to the Summit, especially if I can share it to the mental health group or my criminal justice group, and just say, 'Hey, I participated in this. It's OK to speak up.' "I hope to go back," Bristow said. "I really hope to be the youth ambassador next year and really continue the program because I enjoyed it so much. That was such a great opportunity. I'm thankful for all the people I met there. And I'm very thankful to the HEAR Foundation for letting me be able to go with them."

Woodland Hills Athletic Department Receives National Recognition

The National Interscholastic Athletic Administrators Association has selected the Woodland Hills athletic department as a 2026 NIAAA Quality Program Assessment recipient. The NIAAA conducts a rigorous process to identify, recognize, and commend school athletic programs that demonstrate excellence in the implementation and administration of high school athletics. The application process lasts almost a full year and includes a thorough evaluation of 10 distinct categories of athletic administration, with districts required to provide presentations and supporting documentation to back their application.

One area where Director of Activities, Athletics, and Sponsorships Mr. Ty Brown believes Woodland Hills shines is in providing leadership opportunities and responsibilities to its high school student athletes. From trips to Dickson Preparatory STEAM Academy to mentor the district's middle school students to visits to the elementary buildings to read with the district's youngest learners, the student-athletes have become visible off the field as well as on it.

"I can bark at our kids all day, but if we put that ownership on them, then you can see it registering with them," Mr. Brown said. "They're going out there and these kids are looking up to them for guidance. That's a good one for us."
